

Annual Awards

It is important in the evolution of every organization to acknowledge and recognize the contributions and achievements for those few who contribute to the art and craft of fly fishing and conservation. Understanding where we are is often helped by knowing where we've been, what has occurred, and who was involved.

A look back to the people, places, and things of our past helps to give context and relevance to our organization and what we stand for. Our present achievements and future hopes are but an extension of the anglers and anglers of the past. The BCFFF has a number of awards and it is time to consider who should be recognized in 2005. The BCFFF board reviews nominations at its spring meeting. Please forward yours or your club's nominations with supporting documentation to Art Lingren, awards chair at art.lingren@telus.net by February 28th, 2008.
